

Monica Munoz

This is a screenshot of an animation I made at home. I've always liked animation and would like to work for an animation company or video game company. This short animation is based on a Halloween gift card.

I made this scene in Blender for my art 102 class. The assignment was to create a scene of my choice. This is a child's room.

This last image is based on an assignment I did for another class in which our topic was about Microscopic and Macroscopic. I thought about how Cancer works in a bizarre way. I drew two hands in fists chained up by DNA strands. In making this assignment I thought about how we are affected in the microscopic level by our own individuality and a Macro sense how it affects us as a whole. We are simply chained to our bodies because we are not able to control what happens to it. We are all prone to getting sick. It is us vs our biology. I was inspired to create this artwork because I know someone who experienced the disease.